By the President of the United States—W HEREAS THE VACANT AND UNAPpropriated public lands in the alternate sections designated by even numbers for six sections in width, on each side of the Illinois Central Railroad and branches, granted by the act of 20th September, 1850, "in aid of the construction of a railroad from Chicago to Mobile," have been certified to the State of Illinois; and whereas selections have also been made within fifteen miles of said railroad and branches, on each side thereof, and certified to the said State of Illinois, in lieu of the lands in the even numbered sections within six miles of said railroad and branches, on each side thereof, which had been sold by the United States, or to which the right of pre-emption had attached prior to the passage of said act; and whereas by the third section of said act it is enacted "That the sections and parts of sections of land which, by such grant, shall remain to the United States, within six miles on each side of said road and branches, shall not be sold for less than double the minimum price of the public lands when sold:"

Now, therefore, I, MILLARD FILLMORE, President of the United States, do hereby declare and make known that, in pursuance of the provisions of said act, public sales of the sections and parts of sections of land, all bearing the odd numbers, which

The Great Invention of the Age!—Steam Supplanted!—Gas Triumphant! THE first half of the ninetcenth century will be recorded as the age of steam. It has passed, and with it will pass the steam engine with the

A recorded as the age of steam. It has passed, and with it will pass the steam engine with the things that were.

The second half of the century will be known as commencing the age of Gas—an agent destined not only to light but to snutchers the world. This age has now commenced, and with it is now introduced the Gas Engine.

Professor John C. F. Salomon, after twenty-six years of close observation upon the experiments of his own and of others in attempts to make the principle of the condensation of carbonic acid gas available as a mechanic motor, has perfected the same; and, having just received letters patent for his "Improved Carbonic Acid Engine," now offers to dispose of rights for the use thereof to the United States Government, and to individuals or to companies, the rights of States, counties, or cities.

The immense saving of money and labor, and of human lives and suffering, secured by the use of this new motor, will inevitably insure its speedy adoption in all places where steam power is now used, and in thousands of other places where the great expense, bulk, and weight of the steam engine has precluded its use.

This new motor may be applied to all purposes as a propelling agent, from the single-horse power for ocean steamers, with the expense less than that required by the steam engine, of boilers and furnaces, fuel and firemen, and of bulk and weight—100 tons weight sufficing for the same power of 1,900 tons of the steam engine.

These facts are established by the expertmental engine of twenty-five (25) horse power, now "working well" at Cincinnati, as noticed in the following from the Cincinnati Nonpartiof the 18th instant:

"We are pleased to state that J. C. F. Salomon, late of this city, has received a patent for his motor of following from the Cincinnati Nonpareilof the 18th instant:

"We are pleased to state that J. C. F. Salomon, late of this city, has received a patent for his motor of carbonic acid gas, in its application to an engine. The successful experiments of this invention were not long since given in the Nonpareil. The same gentleman has received another patent for the steering and propelling power."

Also, rights for the use of his "Improved Propelling and Steering Apparatus," one peculiar advantage of which gives the pilot such complete control of the vessel, independent of the engineer, that he can "right-about-face" a man-of-war in less time than is required to load her guns.

Also, rights for his "Improved Spring Saddle," for military and common purposes, designed for the greatest possible comfort of both horse and rider.

of the body on which the destiny of the Republic depends.

The adoption of Congress has given the Gloss an official character as the reporter of all that is said and done in the body. This sanction has been voted at every successive session for many years, and by members of all parties. The press, too, of all parties, has borne testimony to the fidelity with which the duty thus confided has been performed.

The great celerity with which the letter-writers for the distant presscirculate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the debates of Congress, renders more important than ever the for the distant presscirculate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the debates of Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the Congress and Glode. The hasty, and in many instance exparts, relations by telegraph of what occurs in Congress aupersede, for the most part, the exact reports taken down by reporters, and which formerly, in a shape more or less abbreviated, went the rounds of the press. Now the telegraph accounts, with all their imperfections and variety of colorings, take the run of the country, and no press but the efficial of Congress ever publishes the full debate with the proceedings of both Houses unmutilated. Indeed, no newspaper can give them, and have room for advertisements and the miscellaneous matter essential to their existence. While, therefore, the telegraph administers to the eager appetite of the public for Congress news, and meets the necessities of the political press, by furnishing a rapidly-written epitome suited to the taste of its patrons, perfect information of what passes in Congress is greatly diminished. The circulation of the official reports has been, to some extent, cut off by the crude and diversified accounts which, flying along the electric wires, satisfies curiosity, and it is almost in vain that truth puts on his boots to follow. Still there are a great many men of leisure and thought who like to see what is actually said and done in Congress, and to judge for themselves, rather than to receive impressions altogether from galvanic batteries. There are others, too, who, for the sake of the future, willingly patronize a work which preserves a full record of the doings of the great moving and controlling power of the Republic.

During the first month or six weeks of a session there is average and one of the Appendix; but during the remainder of a session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three numbers of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore I calculate that the Congressional Glosse and Appendix together will make at least 3,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type—brevier and nonpareil.
